

I vote for you, the FCC, to truly being a guardian of the people's interest instead of an adjunct to the big media corporations. I can get very little programming now which reflects anything outside of the over all national pablum.

I have to go on line and use the foreign sites. Also, BBC and CBC. I truly hope that the internet stays open to those of us who can read foreign languages so that we can look up other viewpoints and make an educated decision.

No, I don't think that our national media serves us as a so-called democracy well. We had more information in the the 1930s with a wind-charger on the roof and short wave than we do now.

Also the so called intertainment the national media puts out is, with the exception of the public and international stations, pure drivel with added sound tracks, which used to be laugh tracks and is now sounds at mega watts of something being blown up.

Thank you for your consideration which I am sure will be nil.
